Samsung Employee Purchase Program

The Samsung Employee Program is an online store operated to provide employees special benefits to purchase products at a lower price than the market.

Unfortunately, a considerable number of cases violating the purpose and the operational rules of usage have been discovered recently. As a result, EPP restrictions and personal measures will be enforced to those employees. Major violation examples include:

- ① Purchasing at employee discount price and re-selling them to an outsider
- ② Exposing internal discount price information by sharing Samsung Employee Program log-in credentials with outsiders

Act of re-selling or exposing discounted prices to an external entity can damage the market distribution order, such as impacting business partners and sales networks.

Furthermore, it can negatively affect the customer confidence in our products, as well as causing disruption for online Samsung Employee Program operations.

We ask all employees to work together to prevent fraudulent use.

For employees who wish to purchase at a discounted price, we kindly request you to agree upon the following terms below: if any fraudulent use is confirmed, restrictions on further use, and disciplinary actions may be imposed according to the company policy.
